

The first 15 minutes

Your admin turned on Backstory in Claude. Here's how to spend your first 15 minutes with it: sign in, run four prompts, and learn to trust what comes back.

0-2

2-10 · Four prompts

10-15 · Know it's real

MINUTES 0-2

You've got access

1 Sign in once with your Backstory login when Claude prompts you.

2 Pick one real account you're working right now.

OUR EXAMPLE Halden Freight

MINUTES 2-10

Four prompts

Each one asks Backstory for a little more. Prove it's pulling your data, surface something you'd have to dig for, turn it into a prep brief, then compare across accounts.

Prove it's pulling

01

"Using Backstory, catch me up on Halden Freight. What happened in the last 30 days?"

TEACHES It reads your real activity. It isn't guessing.

Get something you'd have to dig for 02

"Using Backstory, who at Halden Freight have we met with, and who has gone quiet?"

TEACHES It surfaces what you'd otherwise hunt for across email and calendar.

Turn it into a prep brief

03

"Using Backstory, turn that into a prep brief for my next meeting with Halden Freight: goals, risks and open questions."

TEACHES It turns raw activity into something you'd bring to a call.

Go across accounts

04 · Bonus

"Using Backstory, compare my activity on Halden Freight and Corvia Health over the last 60 days. Which one needs attention?"

TEACHES It works across accounts, not just within one.

MINUTES 10-15

Know it's real

Three habits that tell you an answer came from your Backstory data.

01 · LOOK FOR IT

The tool call indicator

Before the answer, Claude shows a line saying it used Backstory. That line means it read your data.

 Loaded tools, used Backstory MCP integration >

02 · MAKE IT A HABIT

Ask for receipts

Real answers point back to real activity. Follow up and ask what it's based on.

"Which meetings and emails is that based on?"

03 · SPOT THE GAP

No tool call, no Backstory

If there's no tool call, the answer came from Claude's general knowledge, not your data. Ask again with "Using Backstory" and the account name.

TROUBLESHOOTING

If something looks off

WHAT YOU SEE	LIKELY CAUSE	FIX
Backstory isn't available	Admin hasn't enabled it for you	Contact your admin or your CSM
Sign-in fails	Expired Backstory session	Log into Backstory directly, then retry
"I don't have access to that"	Claude didn't call the tool	Add "Using Backstory" and name the account
Thin or empty answer	Little captured activity	Try an account with recent meetings

AFTER 15 MINUTES, YOU'VE

✓ Signed in once

✓ Built a prep brief

✓ Checked for the tool call

✓ Seen it pull a real account

✓ Compared two accounts

✓ Asked for receipts

WORTH KNOWING

Two words and a name fix most vague answers.

VAGUE

"How's this deal going?"

CLEAR

"Using Backstory, how's Halden Freight going?"

"Using Backstory" tells Claude which tool to use. The account name tells it where to look.